

Gambling powder keg explodes at Bay city council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Gaming issues consumed more than an hour of the Bay St. Louis city council's lengthy meeting Tuesday night, as members of a capacity audience addressed the council.

The public forum sustained several "explosions" after Peggy Dutton took the lid off the city's biggest powder keg — dockside gambling — and dropped a verbal match into it.

Dutton informed the council of the changes to gaming law proposed by House Bill 1597, passed recently and sent to the Senate for consideration. The amendments she mentioned were the elimination of background checks on land owners leasing property to gambling operations and on stockholders with less than five percent of a company's stock; the elimination of Coast Guard inspections of gaming vessels; and the permission for vessels to dock in any man-made inlet or navigable waterway subject to the ebb and flow of the tide.

She said these "surprise changes" spelled trouble for the county and "could potentially wreck our community."

Dutton followed her remarks with some questions she wanted the council to address.

She asked if the city had arranged for "unbiased legal opinions" in case a gambling operation makes concrete plans to move into the city, and what the timetable for the Blue Ribbon Committee is for its work and whether or not it will work with the consultants on the gaming issues study.

Dutton also questioned what protection the city has until the study is completed, and what the status is concerning the potential annexation of Bay Cove Harbour.

before the gambling even came to a vote, and told me he would not be able to give counsel on gaming issues."

Favre told the audience the

I will recuse myself. I'll have to do it. Until that time, there's no need for me to do so."

Favre was attending a wastewater district meeting Wednesday.

"If something specific comes up where I have to give an opinion, I will recuse myself. I'll have to do it. Until that time, there's no need for me to do so."

Mayor Edward Favre addressed Dutton's questions in the same order she asked them.

Favre said city attorney John Scafile "realized there was a problem several months back, Bise could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Scafile confirmed Favre's statement Wednesday, saying, "If something specific comes up where I have to give an opinion, city had contacted Carter Bise of Gulfport and asked him to be the city's special counsel in the day and was unavailable for further comment. However, municipal clerk Kay Johnson said Bise has not been retained by the city at this time.

Concerning Dutton's second question, Favre estimated that the Blue Ribbon Committee should be ready to award the feasibility study to a consultant by the committee's first April meeting.

He said the study, which will cover more than just gaming issues, should take three to four months to complete.

Favre added that the com-

Training program OK'd for county firefighters

BY TRACI BONNEY

The county board of supervisors Monday approved the spending of $2,200 of firefighter training funds to establish a certification program for volunteer firefighters.

The 96-hour program will include classes two nights a week, to be held at Pearl River Community College's Hancock County Vo-Tech Center starting March 12.

County fire coordinator Jay Marsh told the supervisors that Hancock County is one of the first in the state to start such a program. He said the program will exceed the Mississippi State Fire Academy's standards and will allow the firefighters to meet almost all the requirements of professional firefighters.

The program will be conducted at no cost to firefighters in Hancock County, he added. However, those firefighters outside the county who wish to participate will be charged a fee.

Although the classes will be held in Hancock County, Marsh said, firefighters still will be required to take the final examination in Jackson at the State Fire Academy.

The board also approved a request from road superintendent Sam Cuevas that bids be solicited for materials to build a concession stand at the Necaise Crossing ballpark once the materials list is compiled.

However, another ballpark-related request did not receive a positive response from the board. E.J. Marengo, representing the county park commission, asked the board if $12,000 could be taken from the 1991-1992 fiscal year recreation department budget to pay

Waveland docket delays meeting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Despite objections by Ward 4 Alderman Stan Weidman, a resolution was adopted by the Waveland board Tuesday, which is intended to expedite meeting time.

The resolution requires the city purchasing agent, Jean Askew, to be present one hour prior to city meetings, with all invoices relating to that particular group of bills before the board. During the hour, aldermen may review any bill in question.

Weidman, objecting to the limitation of one hour, presented to the board a resolution of his own which required a docket copy to be prepared and delivered to the aldermen on the Friday before a scheduled meeting.

Until now, it has been the city's practice to prepare and deliver a docket copy to the aldermen 24 hours prior to a

St. Anthony Street resident Bill LeBlanc joined his neighbors Monday at Waveland City Hall for a meeting that didn't happen.

Approximately 15 property owners, some traveling from Louisiana, found "no one there." LeBlanc appeared before the board of aldermen to reschedule a meeting with Mayor Stella Frilot to discuss the street's drainage and width.

He said he understood that an oversight had been made by the mayor and only wished for another meeting to be set as soon as possible.

Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold, acting as mayor during Frilot's absence, apologized to LeBlanc and assured him Frilot's leaving town under short notice may have caused her to overlook the scheduled meeting.

The board of aldermen unanimously agreed Tuesday to amend the animal ordinance to include livestock and

"Smart" houses

I just read an intriguing article about something that might interest you — automated houses, or "smart" houses.

At first glance, it looks pretty good — a house that can make your coffee, lock the doors, turn on the lights at night when you're out of town, let you keep an eye on the kids with a video screen, set the atmosphere for the house (bright and cheerful in the morning, or soft and romantic at night), and make sure your appliances operate as efficiently as possible.

Imagine: at the touch of a button, you can start breakfast, burglar-proof the house, or get everything ready for that quiet evening alone with your spouse.

At least two house automation systems are being developed in the United States right now. As I said before, it sounds great — except for a few drawbacks.

The most obvious is the cost. Technology like this will cost a small fortune at first. But as with any other new technology, the more familiar it becomes, the less expensive it becomes. You don't think so? Think about such things as home computers, compact disc players, wide screen televisions and hairdryers.

The second-most-obvious drawback is this: what if the electricity goes out? Will you be unable to lock the doors?

Or worse yet, what if you experience a power surge? Will the house suffer a systems crash?

A third possible problem which comes to mind — and I admit it may stem from my past interest in science fiction — and "The Twilight Zone" — is the house taking over.

I know that sounds odd. But think about it: if there isn't an override feature in the programming, what's to stop the house from taking over?

You wake up one morning, not to the sweet little message you programmed into the talking alarm clock, but to the sound of something like: "Wake up, you lazy bum! Get up now, or you're going to be ejected from the bed in about two seconds!"

Of course you ignore it, thinking you're just having a nightmare. But no, this is no bad dream. It's bad reality.

"ONE — Okay, I warned you! — TWO — Too late now, sucker!" — BOING!!!!!!!!!!!!

You fly through the air and land in a confused heap in front of your closet. An automated arm, which would normally take off the hanger and give to you whatever clothes you select for the day, instead grabs you by the collar, pulls you to your feet, and shoves an armload of garments at you. The voice in the alarm clock — that dreadful voice! — grates: "I've decided you need a change in wardrobe." The automated arm grabs your collar again, just to make sure you don't argue the house's wisdom.

The coffee, which would generally be ready by now, BHHT (Before Hostile House Takeover), is nowhere to be smelled. The house informs you that you're going to cut back on your caffeine intake.

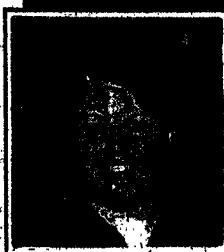

By now, you're so mixed up you just want out of the house. You don't care about breakfast, or even getting your briefcase and overcoat. You just want to get away from this waking nightmare that used to be a friendly little automated house.

Finally, after an encounter that seems like something from "Poltergeist 20: They're Still Here", you escape through the back door, shoot the garage door open so you can get to your car, and frantically drive to your safe, unautomated office.

That night, your house "mysteriously" burns down.

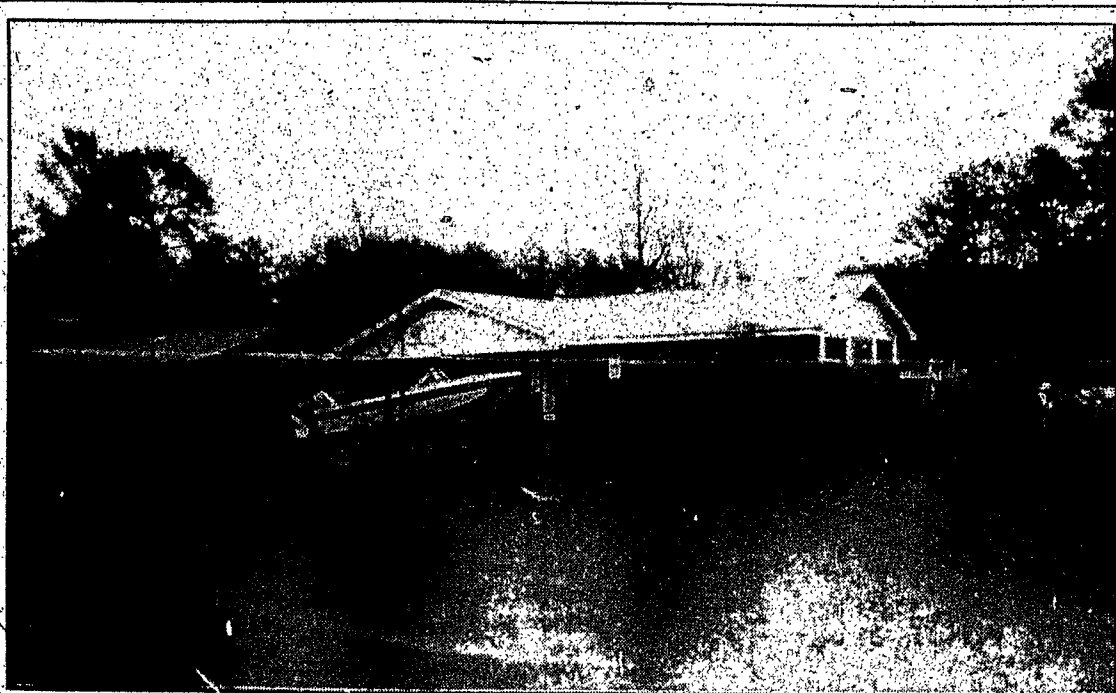

* * * *

Okay, so maybe my imagination is running amok. But I still think those automated houses might be too "smart" for our good.

meeting. The aldermen could check with city hall within those 24 hours to verify any bill questions.

Last month Mayor Stella Frilot asked Askew to begin attending all city meetings, with invoices in hand, because of numerous questions Weidman brought forth during meeting time.

Weidman's resolution would give the aldermen more time to review the docket and if they should have a question on a particular bill they would notify Askew.

Askew would then present copies of all invoices relating to the bill or bills in questions to the alderman, 24 hours prior to the meeting time.

Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold, performing as acting mayor while Frilot was reported to be out of town, commented on Weidman's resolution saying the city would have to change its billing cut-off date.

Ward 3 Alderman Curtis P. "Phil" Colson, objected to Weidman's resolution saying he was satisfied with the one hour.

Colson said, "If the one hour is not enough time for you to question the bills, you still have the opportunity to review during the meeting.

"As you become more familiar with the bills, you won't find it so questionable."

Ward 3 Alderman Bob Hubbard said, "I am satisfied with the first resolution (the one hour review)."

"It takes too long for these meetings."

Forty-five minutes were spent Tuesday reviewing invoices on bills Weidman questioned.

Weidman's resolution died for lack of a second.

reptiles.

The ordinance gives the animal control warden, Ed Absen, the authority to pick up any wandering chickens, pigs, goats, or other animals.

The board approved the signing of an amendment in price to a low bid for sewer repair work, as recommended by the city attorney, Lucien Gex.

The attorney explained that the low bid was lacking the cost of a sub-contractor as explained by the company, thereby making the bid $33,000 less than the next lowest bidder.

The city had accepted the bid at a previous meeting and now needed to amend the price for the benefit of the contractor. Gex said, "the city will still end up saving $20,000" and a possible lawsuit which could have held up work.

A public hearing for a land clean-up was scratched from the agenda when the owner, James Necaise, appeared before the board to report that the ruins of a burned building on the corner of Nicholson and Old Spanish Trail had been removed.

Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard asked that a letter of clean-up be sent to a property owner on Old Spanish Trail, near the Necaise property, where an old car repair building stands in disrepair.

In other business the board approved:

—the return of two overpayments from incorrect property assessments, $32.40 to George Ioup and $29.49 to Thomas Winn;

—the authorization for Pat Warman and Betsy Phillips to attend a municipal clerk's certification training session in Jackson in April;

—the city attorney to draw up a draft for moving a high pressure gas line on Kiln Road and Highway 603.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It was a great day for Hancock County on Sunday with the dedication of the new Human Resources Complex located on Longfellow Road.

We sure have a very beautiful building which is roomy and appears to have been well designed and planned.

I wish those of you who were not at the ribbon cutting and dedication could have seen the smiles on the faces of the folks who will be working out of the complex, especially the Welfare Department.

The Welfare Department was a case in itself for many years, housed, and squeezed into the old creamery which was air conditioned summer and winter from the cracks and holes in the walls.

I have never seen Wallace Bradley, the Welfare director, smiling and talking as much as he did Sunday.

The Board of Health, Social Services, Extension Service and County Agent's offices too, were crowded in their former locations and now have the space they need to provide the services needed for our growing county.

The Mississippi State Employment Service and Unemployment Service's offices are spacious, and it is good news that the Employment Service will be open on Wednesdays and Thursdays in Hancock County.

Our supervisors are working towards having the Employment Service open on a daily basis, and I am hoping this will be accomplished in the very near future.

The Hancock County Human Resources Complex is a facility which every Hancock Countian should be very proud of and take pride in the facility.

Final preparations are underway for the Indoor Arts, Crafts & Food Festival to be held all day Saturday at the new Hancock High School.

The event is sponsored by the Hancock High School and some 100 booths are expected.

All types of arts, crafts and many types of foods will be available.

The hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday, March 9, and the location is Stennis Drive off Highway 603 next to the Hancock County Airpark. Signs from Highway 603 should lead folks to the parking areas.

I hope to see you at the Arts, Crafts & Food Festival.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Better highways high on Congress' agenda

The President announced his recommendations for a five-year $105 billion plan to improve the nation's highways and bridges. His plan is a very good starting point, particularly for Mississippi, because the bulk of spending is earmarked for highways improvement and expansion. Only a small portion of the plan involves mass transit, unlike past years where urban transit programs consumed a disproportionate share of the transportation budget.

Another improvement which will benefit Mississippi's highway improvement programs is the ending of most categorical grants to states and cities. This will allow us in Mississippi to spend federal transportation money where it is most needed and not according to a "one size fits all" program written in Washington to accommodate all 50 states.

I am concerned about a part of the Administration proposal which would decrease the federal funding share for highway projects to state and local governments whose taxpayers would have to make up the difference.

The Federal Highway System if a "federal" responsibility. States have state highways and local roads they are bound to maintain. Highways are not the place to shift the burden from the federal government to the states.

In fact, many in the Congress have joined with industry officials in calling for an increase in the amount of federal spending on highways. Some experts believe the nation will need between $1 trillion and $3 trillion just to repair crumbling roads and bridges.

Under the President's proposal, the federal government would spend $87.7 billion over five years on a restructured highway system that includes a new, 150,000-mile National Highway System consisting of the current interstate system and other important roads.

A second system of 700,000 miles of urban and rural roads would be created. States could decide within this program to spend federal money on roads. A bridge program would provide money to fix existing spans.

I spent the second week in February on the road driving from Columbus to central parts of the state down to Natchez, and I saw firsthand the dangers from crumbling roads and the urgent need for improvements.

As a member of the Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, I will be involved in writing the highway plan. In that position, I will be supporting efforts to maintain the federal government's role in highway construction and maintenance.

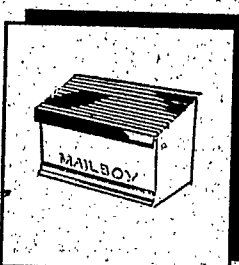

Federal highways are long overdue for improvement and four-laning throughout Mississippi. This work on federal and local roads is vital to our ability to attract industry, create jobs, and sustain economic growth. The Administration plan is a positive starting point. We need to finish it, and start building.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Most military members answered call to duty with pride

To the Editor:

I am a sergeant with the 1355th S & S Co. from Bay St. Louis with a comment about the letter to the editor I read in the Jan. 31 edition of the Sea Coast Echo.

I would just like to say this to Jonathan R. Clark of Waveland. Who is he to say something about the sense of the situation he faces? I know how he must feel, because I and the rest of my unit felt our hearts fall into the pit of our stomachs when we were activated.

But unlike Mr. Clark, we answered our call to duty with pride in our hearts and our loved ones on our minds. We never expected to be in a war.

What I would like to ask him is, if he is such a conscientious objector to war, why did he join the military in the first place? I guess he thinks that this hasn't disrupted our lives. I, like most of the members of the 1355th, have a wife and children whom we had to leave to more or less fend for themselves.

One thing is for sure. We appreciate all the support we are getting from our folks back home. We will continue to appreciate the support and perform our mission here. I agree with the commander of the American Legion Post who says, it's time to protest the protestors.

God bless all of our families and friends back home for the support. We will return back to our homes with our heads held high and our arms raised in victory, because we are proud to be Americans.

Thank you,
Sgt. Glenn D. Fountain

Voluntary enlistment leaves no room for complaints

To the Editor,

An open letter to Jonathan R. Clark:

As a Vietnam veteran and now stationed in Saudi Arabia with the Army National Guard, I do not agree with your philosophy.

Until about nine years ago all physically, mentally and morally fit male citizens owed to their country two years of active military service.

No one forced you to join the Army. Therefore, you have no gripe. They are sending you to do a job that they trained and are paying you to do. If you don't want to do that you should go to prison for stealing.

As for the Golden Rule you referred to, if you want to wait to see what your foe does to you first, that's your opinion. Kuwait did, and look what happened there.

I hope that with your philosophy, which is growing and evolving every day, that you are not sent to work with my unit.

Sincerely,
SSG William J. Overal Jr.
Operation Desert Storm

Freedom of expression was won by struggle

To the Editor:

Reference: Letter of Jonathan R. Clark

I respect your right to be a conscientious objector. I am proud, as you should be, to be able to have that right as well as to be able to express your opinion.

The reason that you are able to have these rights and express your opinions publicly are a direct result of your ancestors fighting for those rights.

The people of Kuwait do not have the luxuries that you are enjoying. Think of how you would feel if Saddam Hussein came into our country, raped your mother and your sister, killed your father and gave you a gun, a bite of food and said, fight for me or I'll kill you.

I believe that Hussein is wrong, and I don't want to risk the slightest possibility that if we let him get away with taking over Kuwait that our country might be next.

Therefore I came proudly to Saudi Arabia and fight on their soil and on into his to strip him of his power now, to stop him before he gains the momentum to try for bigger and better things.

Next time the thought crosses your mind that you don't believe in war, be thankful that you are able to think those thoughts and express your opinions. This is all a direct result of your ancestors' fight.

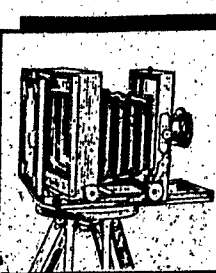

In your search for simple answers in this complex world, let me give you one:

What does the military do? Fight wars.

Who is the military? All of us who raised our hands and said that we would support the President, defend the Constitution, and obey the orders of those appointed over us.

You should have looked to your philosophy before you signed the dotted line and said that you would to these things.

Sincerely,
SPC Mary K. Love

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors directed its acting attorney Gerald Gex to study a proposed list of regulations submitted Monday by a representative of the County Firemen's Association. Edward Friloux, fire safety administrator of the Diamondhead Fire Department told supervisors the proposed rules and by-laws represent the association's effort to make an in-house judicial body.

Another apartment proposal for Waveland's beach is in the offing. Town Council was informed Tuesday night. Dr. Benjamin Gore, who is seeking the estimated $200,000 garden complex, was instructed to file the necessary re-zoning application through the planning commission. Charles Dickens, secretary of the planning commission, reported Dr. Gore wants to erect 10 to 12 units in the vicinity of Conrad's Lane 500 feet back from the beach in an area now zoned for two-family units.

In order to stock the county marshes with beaver to establish the trapping and furring business for local folks, the State Department of Conservation, through the instruction of Commissioner W.H. Starr, let go the ten beaver animals in the waters and marshes at the head waters of Jourdan River this week. There are four males and six females, and trappers and others are warned to keep out of this territory for the time being. These animals are said to propagate rapidly and the pelts bring fancy prices.

A bill was introduced in the House of Representatives at Jackson Saturday prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and cigarette papers in the state. This bill was fought bitterly. Petitions have been received from the president and faculty of the A & M College and also from the state normal at Hattiesburg asking that the bill be passed. There are numerous other petitions asking that the bill be passed.

Reports received at Jackson from 71 counties of the 80 counties show that 416,409 gallons of whiskey were shipped into Mississippi last year. This does not include beer or other malt liquors, nor liquor brought in by private conveyance. Averaging the whiskey at $3 per gallon, the people of Mississippi spent at least $1,249,227 for booze last year, and no doubt their purchase amounts to a million and a half.

Bus policy on hold at Hancock Schools

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County School Board met Monday for approximately 20 minutes, clearing away regular business and entering into executive session to discuss student hearings scheduled for Monday, March 11.

During the meeting, proposed changes to school bus policy were placed on hold by board members, until wording of the policy could be changed for purposes of clarity. The board is expected to meet again on March 11 to discuss the proposed changes.

After advertising for the construction of baseball dugouts on three separate occasions, the board opened the lone bid.

Lagniappe Construction Services of Bay St. Louis bid

$10,530 for the dugout construction.

Terrill Randolph, superintendent of the school district recommended the board accept the bid from Lagniappe, but the board chose to place it under advisement until the athletic department had a chance to verify all bid costs.

In other business the board approved:

—the single source purchase of testing materials from Jastak Assessment Systems in the amount of $1,072;

—the recommendation of assistant superintendent Eddie Danzey to contract with B&B Services to take water samples for bacteriological analysis each month from each school as mandated by the Mississippi State Department of Health for the amount of $49.50 per month;

—the recommendation to employ Kristen R. Ladner as a substitute teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary for the remainder of the 1990-91 school year;

—the recommendation of Lloyd Wilson as Hancock High National Society Sponsor; activity fund reports for all schools for the month of January, 1991; and —all school activity funds claims dockets for the month of February, 1991.

ST. ANN CHURCH NEWS

A thought for meditation from our pastor Father Justin Furman, ST.

Affirming one's freedom, basic to any notion of openness to God's favor, is taking responsibility for the self in relation to other people. It is learning to live as a separate person, but it is learning to do that within rather than outside the context of close relationships. Obedience to the "perfect law of liberty" is anchored in relationships.

St. Ann-St. John CYO members would like to express their thanks and appreciation to everyone who contributed in any way to the success of their cake sale last Sunday.

The group of teens meets every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the parish hall.

COD classes are held every Sunday in the parish hall from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Friday, March 8 at 7 p.m., there will be the Station of the Cross at St. Ann Church.

On Sunday there will be the presentation of Parish Council members and installation of Council Officers during the 9:30 a.m. Mass at St. Ann Church. Every Wednesday during Lent there will be Devotions followed by Benediction at 7 p.m. at St. Ann Church.

Please keep in mind our Mission which will be held at St. Ann Church from March 18 to 22.

Lenten revival

St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church will hold a Lenten revival March 11-13, 7 p.m. each day, featuring Young, Talented...Black and Catholic.

The Revs. Charles and Chester Smith, SVD, Divine Word Missionary priests, make up Young, Talented...Black and Catholic. Their services include singing, fellowship, healing and the ministering of forgiveness.

Tuesday, March 12, is Word, Youth Night.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

As I listened the other morning to several friends moaning about the difficulty of preparing meatless meals, especially during the Lenten season, I found myself "laughing, rather than cooking up a storm" at the idea that here on the Gulf Coast, with the bounty of the waters around us, and with all the fresh vegetables on hand, anyone could feel deprived without meat as a part of a meal.

Oh, I like a good steak—make mine medium rare, please—as well as the next diner, when budget and inclination permit; and fried chicken is my all-time favorite—or is it a good pot roast or chicken liver—or what else?

But, I can live quite happily on seafood and fresh vegetables and dried beans and all the other delicious non-meat foods as well. Even if you're not following Lenten rules, why not try adventuring along some of the vegetable paths, for instance, which you haven't tried as yet, or not very often?

Eggplant, for example. Its almost meaty taste and its texture make this vegetable an excellent meat substitute, although I really don't think of it as a substitute, as it's quite tasty in its own right. At one time in our country, as well as in Europe, eggplant was shunned, as was the tomato, as a member of the "deadly" nightshade family, distant relative of the poisonous belladonna, the "deadly nightshade."

At last, thanks to some adventurous soul who dared to cook the eggplant, and survive, our ancestors finally became convinced that the eggplant was harmless, and that the tomato was not the "mad apple" after all!

In case you're wondering why it's called "eggplant," long ago, in some countries (and still the case in some spots) the eggplant was a small, pale egg-shaped vegetable, and not the handsome, purple-robed vegetable of these days.

I like eggplant as a "carriage" stuffed with shrimp or crab-meat or both; or with chopped ham or ground beef or lamb. I like it cooked with tomatoes and onions, and bell peppers in a ratatouille. I also like eggplant, sliced into disks or strips, just as one does potatoes, then fried crisp.

And, I like it in this:

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

1 large eggplant, peeled and sliced 1-inch thick, or a bit thicker

3 Tblsp. butter or margarine

3 Tblsp. olive oil

1 large onion, chopped

1 clove garlic, minced

2 cups chopped tomatoes (peeled)

3/4 cup bread crumbs

1 cup grated Mozzarella cheese

1/4 cup chopped parsley

Pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce to your taste

Pinch of thyme and of basil

If necessary, trim the eggplant slices a bit so that they are all approximately the same size. (Reserve the trimmings, and chop or dice trimmings, to be added to the dish). Place the slices in a very lightly oiled baking dish, and sprinkle with pepper and salt. Broil just a few minutes, until lightly browned on one side.

Meanwhile, heat the oil and butter in a pan, add the onion and garlic and saute just until the onion are soft. Add tomatoes and chopped trimmings, and simmer for 12 to 15 minutes, until thick, then add the other seasonings and breadcrumbs. Turn the eggplant slices over, and spoon the seasoned tomato mixture atop. Sprinkle liberally with the cheese, and bake in a pre-heated oven 20 to 30 minutes, or until tender. (Four to six servings)

Continued success for 'La Cage' prompts second added performance

Bay St. Louis Little Theater has added yet another date to its schedule of performances of 'La Cage Aux Folles.'

The musical continues Saturday, March 9, and Thursday through Saturday, March 14-16. All dates are sold out except the 14th, the showing added this week, said director Larry Heller.

For reservations, at $5, call 467-1304 between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

BSLLT, the first community theater on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, chose the 1986 Broadway hit to celebrate its 45th birthday.

"It's a wonderful party, full of laughs, great songs, tender moments and glittering costumes," Heller said.

Special crafts offered at Hancock

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock High School will be filled with the rewards of busy hands this Saturday as they kick off their first annual Arts, Crafts and Food Festival.

Among the varied events, some special hands have been busy creating their own crafts.

The Life Skills Program at the high school provides education for those young people with special learning needs, who yearn to have their own independent place in society.

Along with learning basic words and household skills for survival in the world, they have applied themselves to making dolls, wreaths, centerpieces, barettes and a variety of crafts.

Each piece of work will be sold to the public with the profits going to a travel account. The students are anticipating a trip to the aquarium in New Orleans this April.

"Some of these students have never been to New Orleans," said high school teacher, Bonita Favre.

Favre and her assistant, Myrtle Jordan have been supervising and helping the students prepare for the weekend festival.

The festival will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. this Saturday in the high school Commons area.

There will be food booths along with crafts from out of town vendors.

BACK TO NATURE

By Lydia Schultz

Migratory birds have been trying to tell us something

Special to the Echo
By LYDIA SCHULTZ
"If I could talk to the animals, just imagine it... chatting with..." That song line comes to my mind.

When the birds or animals are so close that I can see their eyes shining and catch a glimmer of the spirit behind the eyes, I wonder what they would say if they could talk.

But, think about it, they are talking to us. Birds in particular have been talking to us every day for years. Of the approximately 9,000 species of birds worldwide, 1,000 are threatened with extinction, and two-thirds of them are on the decline.

I remember many years ago, a wise person made the distinction between hearing and listening. It seems so apropos to say that the animals are talking, and we are hearing, but not listening.

They communicate to us in many ways. The Bald Eagle that flopped through the oil at Valdez and was shown on television around the world day after day, haunting us, spoke loud and clear. From his lost life and thousands of other lost wildlife came anger enough to have at least one oil company recently change to double hulled oil carriers.

The Cormorants that have floated in the oil in the Persian Gulf have given me many sad hours. The black clouds billowing through the already thick air will wreak havoc on numerous species of wildlife so far away and near that no one at this point even dare to predict the ramifications.

What messages will we get from this disaster?

carries a message, if we listen.

Are we listening? Will we strengthen our laws to protect them or will we choose to ignore the messages and go on in our own comfortable niche?

Spring is coming? Each ing. The birds have spoken and have been doing so for many years.

On a lighter note, birds will soon be telling you that spring is definitely springing. American Goldfinches that have swarmed feeders for the last the whole year. So, let's hope that weather conditions will permit us to get an eye full of blue this year!

Those are the most obvious feeder birds that tell us little things. Birders look for Warblers with the smallest differences that can mean a rarity or a common bird.

Identifying one can be the challenge of a lifetime, and spring always brings an abundance of the tiny gleaning insect eaters.

The loveliest sign of spring can be the buttercup-yellow Prothonotary Warbler with several cronies sipping at my fountain. The Hooded Warbler always makes an appearance also.

There are so many species I look forward to, and if time permits, I'll be in the woods at least a couple days trying to get a glimpse of many more.

One very bright note for Hancock County is that many more Bald Eagle reports have been coming in. Both adults and immatures are showing up. Port Bienville, Jackson Marsh and near Buccaneer Park are good areas to catch a sighting of our national bird.

Let's take care of them by being responsible locally. Every action we take makes a difference at some point—somewhere in the future.

Tufted Titmouse

year birders across the country hope to have fallouts of birds, that range in colors of reds, greens, blues, oranges and yellows.

Those fantastic birds come to us from wintering grounds that we have no way of protecting. DDT still exists where they go to survive the winter. (And that DDT is produced still in the United States!)

But to be honest, their greatest threat of all is habitat destruction; loss of trees, loss of forests. Man's lack of responsible stewardship.

So each year I must admit to being a little anxious and sensitive to the numbers of birds seen. Are the numbers low because the weather was good and they've flown over few months will soon be moving North to breeding grounds. Some will go into Southern Canada. Isn't that incredible?

Indigo Buntings and Painted Buntings can cause the biggest uproar on my phone and in my shoppe if enough of them stop at feeders and in yards to make a show.

If they don't make an appearance, I will hear gripes

Eastern Bluebird

The birds and animals which have been talking to us will continue to try to communicate through their declines in numbers or through their ill health. Often a sick animal us, or are they low because less are coming through?

Wanting to think positive cannot change the facts. The facts are that our populations of migratory birds are changmittee will work with both the consultant and the city on the study and on any subsequent proposals.

About interim protection for the city in case an operation begins to move in, Favre said nothing is in place yet; however, he added, the city has the assurance of both the Secretary of State's office and the State Tax Commission that no licenses will be issued for gaming facilities in Bay St. Louis until the city's study is complete.

The annexation of Bay Cove is currently at a standstill, Favre said. He explained that the owners originally pledged full support of annexation efforts, but because of zoning regulations, they may not support annexation at this time.

Favre said that as local ordinances stand, Bay Cove would become R-1 (residential) if annexed. This would negate all the plans being made by Charles Lambert's company.

"They won't support that," Favre stated.

Councilman Jim Thrifflie moved that the council go on record as opposing House Bill 1597. His original motion was to object only to the background check elimination, but after several amendments, he moved to object the entire bill.

James Rutherford seconded Thrifflie's first motion, but withdrew his second to the amended motion, saying he did not object to the entire bill. John Wilkerson then seconded the amended motion, which passed 3-2, with Rutherford and Thomas Favre voting against it.

Resident Bill Eslick spoke next. His comments were brief and pointed. He said he thought the city council had not listened to its constituents concerning both dockside gambling and the newly adopted tree ordinance, which lists only two species of trees as protected and does not include several suggested during a public hearing.

He then urged the council to listen to its constituents about another issue on the agenda: the adoption of a cable television franchise that would allow Futurevision, of Hattiesburg, to move into the area and compete with MultiVision.

Council chairman Charles Scianna addressed Eslick's comments, defending the council's decision about the tree ordinance and pointing out that in the cases of both the television ordinance and the gambling issue, the public has had adequate information and opportunity to voice concerns.

Franya Ethridge then asked to speak. She said she agreed with Eslick's comments about the council listening to the people and echoed Dutton's concern.

Ethridge said, "I find it astounding that the council is not informed about gaming legislation."

She stated she thinks the council needs to work with other local boards, as well as the state, to keep abreast of what is happening and to make sure the county reaps the maximum benefits and experiences the smallest problems possible with the advent of dockside opposed to the fourth site because it is in a residential area.

Jake Jacob, representing Bay Cove Harbour, offered to arrange a meeting between the council, the public and any other governing bodies necessary to inform them about Bay Cove's plans and to let them view any legislation they want to see. "I can get you copies of the legislation," he said. "We have copies of all the bills."

Joe Ethridge echoed his wife's sentiments about the need for the council to be informed, then accused Scafile of being unethical in speaking at a Planning and Zoning Committee public hearing without informing the public that he gambling.

Wilkerson told Ethridge he agreed with her assessment that no one was working together, and said none of this area's state representatives had contacted the council and offered to meet with it. When Ethridge asked if Wilkerson had contacted the representatives, he said he had done so many times.

Sen. Vic Franckiewicz, when interviewed by telephone Wednesday, said he knew of no such attempts to contact him. He added, however, it is possible that council members have tried to call him.

Rep. J.P. Compretta, in a telephone interview, said only one council member, Jim Thrifflie, has contacted him so far. "If anyone else has called, they haven't left a message."

Compretta added he is willing to meet with the council or anyone who contacts him.

At the meeting, Ethridge asked Favre for his opinion about four potential gambling facility sites: the beachfront bordering on Main Street, the Pete Fountain property, Bay Cove Harbour and the American Legion pier on Washington Avenue.

Favre said he favors the first three; that was why he proposed zoning that would have allowed gambling in those areas. However, he said he is owns beachfront property at a potential site for gaming.

Scafile defended his actions and said he thought it was out of line for someone who does not do business in Bay St. Louis to attack the ethics of someone who does invest his money, time and business in the city.

While Scianna attempted to restore order to the meeting,

Scafile listed his civic and community organization involvement, then told Ethridge, "I will not be intimidated by you or anyone else who questions my investing in my home town!"

After the dust settled a bit, the Rev. Nathan Barber spoke. He urged the council to carefully examine H.B. 1597, and told them the bill passed only two weeks after he had sent a letter to the State Tax Commission addressing some of the very issues now allowed by the bill.

"Don't believe everything they want you to believe," he said.

After the rest of the business was conducted, the council prepared to go into executive session to discuss two lawsuits. Wilkerson asked to be allowed to speak before the council entered executive session. By this time, the Ethridges and the bulk of the audience had left.

Saying his remarks were "for the benefit of the press," Wilkerson defended Scafile's actions and ethics, and said he thought the comments made earlier were uncalled-for and inexcusable.

Wilkerson said Scafile had owned his beachfront property "for years" and should not be viewed as an opportunist. Scafile interrupted, saying he had not owned the property for years, but had bought it in April of 1990.

COPPER THEFT

Bay St. Louis Police Department Detective Gus Aime reported Monday the arrests of four Bay St. Louis residents in connection with a theft at the CSX Transportation depot on Railroad Street.

Aime said it was reported that on February 27, two spools of copper conducting wire (approximately 2,100 feet of wire) were taken from the depot. On March 1, Ralph Lanaux, 47, went to the Bay St. Louis Police Department and confessed his involvement in the theft, Aime added.

He said Lanaux was arrested and the information he gave led to the arrests of a 17-year-old juvenile; Shirley Mae Reed, 21; and Willie Grace, 74. The adults were incarcerated in the Hancock County jail under $5,000 bond each, except for Grace, who was released on his own recognizance because of existing medical conditions. The juvenile was turned over to Youth Court authorities.

According to Aime, Lanaux said he, Reed and the juvenile took the wire to Grace, who burns copper, to have it readied for sale to a salvage operation. Grace burned the wire and took the suspects to Gabriel's Salvage Yard in Slidell, La., where they sold the copper (which weighed approximately 400 pounds) for $266, Aime explained.

Aime is working in conjunction with CSX Transportation agent Don Davis on the case.

ARMED ROBBERY

The armed robbery of a pizza delivery person is under investigation by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, according to Investigator Nathan Hoda.

Hoda said the robbery occurred March 2 around 11:57 p.m., when Domino's Pizza employee William Berthold, 24, delivered two pizzas to the Bay Side Park Country Club, where he was held up at knifepoint and robbed of the pizzas and $45 by a man who was approximately 40 years old.

No arrest has been made as of yet, Hoda said.

Miss. stillhunters support ban on whitetail deer hunting with dogs

The Board of Directors of the Mississippi Stillhunters Association adopted a resolution calling for the abolition of hunting whitetail deer with dogs in the state of Mississippi at its annual meeting Feb. 23 in Hattiesburg.

This policy change was supported in light of increasing anti-hunting sentiment brought on by roadhunting, deer dogs trespassing on private and leased land, and biological factors relating to stress on deer by dogs.

Currently 43 states have abolished doghunting with other states severely limiting the practice. A legislative agenda was also adopted and will be circulated at a later date.

The Mississippi Stillhunters Association explicitly states that this policy shift is strictly against the use of dogs in hunting whitetail deer only. At no time has the MSA ever had any objections to the use of dogs in other types of game hunting.

During the meeting, Ransom P. Jones III of Pascagoula was installed as the new president of the MSA. Jones may be contacted at 762-7636, or for more information on the MSA, write to P. O. Box 1041, Lucedale, MS 39452.

A taped version of the show will be rebroadcast at 6:15 the following morning and at 5:30 p.m., Saturday, March 9.

Joining host Melvin Tingle to answer questions on turkey season bag limits, projected harvest and safety information are Howard Parish of Carson, conservation officer with the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks;

Bill Hamrick of Newton, biologist with MDWFP; and L. J. Smith of Clinton, hunter education administrator for MDWFP. This live teleconference will allow prospective turkey hunters across the state to call in and receive immediate answers to their questions.

A production of the Mississippi Educational Television Network and the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries, and Parks, "Mississippi Outdoors" is made possible by grants from the people of International Paper and Mississippi Power & Light.

Updating the look

Jerome's Department Store at the corner of Second and Main received a "facelift" recently when students in Wendy Lamb's Bay High School fashion merchandising class started a project for the state DECA competition held last week.

The 16 students used one of their two-hour class periods to organize the store's interior and give the exterior a new look with the help of Evelyn Yarbrough, who is shown in the top photo painting one of the store's windows. At left, Amy Bourgeois re-arranges merchandise while store owner Harold Carver watches the progress. Below, Linnea Curran arranges a display of camouflage wear.

The class's project — to find a local establishment that needs an increase in business, do something to help that establishment bring in more customers, and write a manual describing what was done — won in the state competition. The manual will be taken to national DECA competition in Denver, Colo., where four of the students (accompanied by Mrs. Lamb) will present it.

Region 6 Science Fair to draw 1,200 students

The Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium has awarded support for the 1991 Region 6 Science and Engineering Fair, announced James I. Jones, Sea Grant director.

Sea Grant will provide trophies for first, second and third place winners in the March 22 competition at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum.

Winners are selected for six subject categories in two grade classes for elementary students and for 11 subject categories in three grade classes for junior and senior high school students.

The fair draws students from public and private schools, grades 1-12, in George, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Stone counties.

Advancing to regional competition are students who have placed first, second and third in their subject category and grade class in schoolwide or citywide competition. More than 1,200 students are expected to compete in the Region 6 fair.

ion. 6 fair.

Co-sponsors with Sea Grant are the Naval Oceanographic and Atmospheric Research Laboratory, the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory and Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College.

Region 6 director is Dr. Sharon H. Walker, Sea Grant marine education specialist and administrator of the GCRL's marine education center.

Representatives of sponsoring agencies and institutions are Dr. Jones, Sea Grant; Dr. Barry Mellinger, MGCCC; Capt. J. B. Tupaz and Dr. William B. Moseley, NOARL; and Lawrence J. Bellipanni, University of Southern Mississippi.

Two international finalists—top winners of the March 22 competition—will represent Region 6 at the 42nd International Science and Engineering Fair in Orlando, Fla. May 6-11. Students in grades 7-12 who place first, second or third in regional competition are eligible to advance to the state fair at Jackson State University April 12.

Support of the science fair is an element of Sea Grant's Congressionally mandated mission to promote the understanding and appropriate use of marine and coastal resources through research, education and public service activities.

A federal matching funds program within the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the U.S.

Department of Commerce, Sea Grant in Mississippi and Alabama is administered through a consortium of institutions.

Mississippi members are Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, Mississippi State University, University of Mississippi and University of Southern Mississippi.

Alabama members are Auburn University, University of Alabama, University of Alabama at Birmingham and University of South Alabama.

Career Night

Professionals from diverse career fields, governmental officials and business owners were on hand last Tuesday night at Hancock High School to speak to college-bound students from several area high schools. Representatives from many colleges were also present. At top left, members of the Hancock High School student council serve refreshments; at bottom, Janet McQueen of The Sea Coast Echo, Mike Conroy of WLOX-TV 13, and Tammie Langford of The Sun-Herald spoke to students interested in journalism, and at right, members of the military speak to students. From left are Dawn Strough, Wayne Thompson, Staff Sgt. Don McKinley, Chief Thomas Falconer and Chief Charles Mattingly.

St. Stanislaus students participate in state science and math tournament

Morning Stiffness: Arthritis Warning Sign #1

If your mornings start off with stiffness in the joints that lasts more than just a few minutes, you may have a form of arthritis that can be treated. And the earlier you seek treatment, the better the chances are that the arthritis can be arrested... before it does permanent damage.

There are literally dozens of different types of arthritis, many of which may start off with morning stiffness. In point of fact however, different kinds of arthritis may lead to different kinds of complications, in some cases affecting virtually every organ in the body.

The Rheumatologist is the physician who specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of these disorders. After receiving the degree M.D., degrees, and after a total of five years are spent in either internal medicine or pediatric training programs, the Rheumatologist is certified in one of those areas. (One of our Rheumatologists, Dr. Marielis, Sedrish, is board certified in both Medicine and Pediatrics.) Once the proper training is successfully completed, the physician begins an additional two to three year training program (called a "fellowship") in rheumatology, concentrating on the diagnosis and treatment of only the conditions known as arthritis and connective tissue diseases.

The end result of all these years of training is the ability to recognize what kind of arthritis the patient has, the underlying cause, and how to treat it. will pinpoint the disease, the treatment, and the knowledge of the disease, the treatment, and the most successful means of treatment.

Once an accurate diagnosis has been made, treatment can be begun and the patient can return to his or her family doctor. Then, working with the Rheumatologist and the family doctor, the Rheumatologist and the family doctor can keep you on top of the disease.

USM/Gulf Park offers teacher certification reinstatement

Mississippi school teachers whose teaching certification has lapsed may have their certification reinstated during the spring or summer term at the University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park campus.

The teacher certification reinstatement course will be offered the weekends of April 4-6 and 12-13, and the week of June 10-14 in the Long Beach campus' Hardy Hall. Registration is set for 8 a.m., April 4 and June 10.

Pre-registration is required, and a $25 deposit must be submitted at least two weeks prior to the date of registration, said Dr. Carol Reed, course instructor.

The minimum enrollment is 10 students.

This intensive refresher course, which includes instruction about the Mississippi Teachers Assessment Instrument (MTAI), meets all requirements of the state Department of Education, Reed said. The department requires teachers who have let their certification lapse to become recertified before they are again eligible to teach.

Students must be fully admitted or readmitted to the university to be eligible for enrollment. For information about entrance requirements, contact USM's Office of Admissions and Records, Southern Station Box 5011, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-5011, (601) 266-5555.

For information about lodging or registration, contact USM Gulf Park, Conference Center, E. Beach Blvd., Long Beach, MS 39560, or call (601) 865-4508.
